HAS IOWA ANY NATURAL GAS

Report of the State Geological Board Covering the Subject.

NATURAL PHENOMENA ARE ALL PRESENT

General Composition: and Trend of the Rock Strata Underlying the State Make the Existence of Petroleum Tanks Extremely Probable.

For several years past considerable excitement has been occasioned now and then by the discovery at different places in Iowa of natural gas in small quantities. The gas wells at Letts in Louisa county and those at Herndon, northwest of Des Moines, are perhaps the most notable. At both of the places named the gas has been used for years for private purposes. All of the wells are the results of boring for water and hence are very shallow, containing, says Dr. Keyes, nothing but the surface gas. They therefore represent but the possibilities of the state in the line mentioned.

In nearly every county in the state at one time or another the gas agitation has appeared in one form or another. At different times of late it has broken out in Jefferson, at Carroll and Glidden, at Redfield and Rock Rapids. In boring for water in almost all the sections of Iowa, at one time or another, gas has been accidentally discovered. This must be a quantity and quality of the product down deep in the earth that is equal to the gas of the eastern states. In response to this general belief the geological survey of the state provided for at the last legisla-ture includes the investigation of the mat-Charles R. Keyes, assistant state ologist, has just made a report on the sub-

in his official discussion of the subject the

With gas and oil in abundance in the neigh-boring states; with a close similarity of geo-logical formations; with an expectant people already testing in different parts of the state, the question naturally arises: What are the probabilities of obtaining these substances in lowa?

Iowa?

Before attempting to answer, however, it may be desirable to review briefly the conditions of a successful flow. These conditions fall under two heads: The origin and the ac-The different theories concerning the origin of natural gas and mineral oil need not be con-sidered in detail here. Nearly all geologists now believe that organic matter buried in the rocks at the time they were laid down is the real source of petroleum, some regarding it as a sort of distillation through means of moderate heat, some as the result of decomposition. Contrary to popular opinion petroleum is a widely distributed substance. The well known dolomities of Chicago contain large quantities. Orton has shown that the water lime formation of Ohlo which is a consequent.

Mr. Keyes then discusses the necessary mditions to make the almost universal accumulations of oil of commercial value. It has already been shown that large quantities of petroleum are doubtless disseminated through lowa's rocks, the evidence being here as elsewhere the actual presence of a large amount of hydrocarbons. There is little doubt that the porous strata reservoirs and the shale coverings are present. This is indicated by artesian wells already put down in different texts of the state of the st parts of the state, as well as by the succession of the beds observable in the northwestern part of the state. The pressure is sufficient, as is known from various sources.

There remains yet one necessary condition It is well known that the strata of Iowa have a general dip to the southwestward, the total amount of fall being in the neighbor-hood of 3,500 feet. But the whole of the state is covered with a thick mantle of glacial deposits, hiding from view the stratified rocks entirely and at every point. Numerous streams, however, have corroded their channels completely through the drift debris, even into the un-derlying indurated rocks, thus exposing in many places the arrangement of the differ ent layers. It will be some time before any-thing like accurate and detailed cross sections can be made across the state in direction of the common inclination of the rocks, and yet good progress in that line has already been made.

There is a widespread opinion that the Iowa strata have still their uninterrupted seaward tilt unaffected by deformations of any kind. Such, however, is not the case. Although far removed from mountainous districts, orographic movements have affected the beds to a slight extent, producing low folds. A number of these low anticines known, though rather vaguely. According to McGee, says Dr. Keyes, who has indi-cated the chief axes of the state in a recent sketch map, the anticlines of eastern Iowa trend southwestward. Other folds have been recognized in the central and western portion of the state. The extent of this folding is at present anknown, but in some cases it may prove to considerable; sufficient, perhaps, to the last requirement for a flowing well. It is not then beyond all hope that when the arching dome of some low antic-line is pierced we may yet hear the mighty not soon forgotten, or listen to the gushing stream of liquid amber.

NORTH GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 18 .- With locomotive and rolling stock on the ground ready for use and their fine steel track completed, the North Galveston railroad now brings the promising little city of North Galveston into direct communication with the rest of the outside world. With splen-did rail and water facilities, and boundless resources to be worked up into manufactured products, the prospect certainly looks bright for that section of the country.

SUPREME COURT SYLLABI.

Points Covered by Recent Decisions of the Nebraska Tribunal.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 18.—[Special to The Bee.]—The following syllabi of decisions were given out by the supreme court today: Ehoning vs Coburn. Error from Douglas county. Affirmed. Opinion by Mr. Chief

1. Held, that the petition states a cause of action and that the new matter in the answer was not materal.

2. Where objection is made that the record fails to show that a jury was waived and the cause tried to the court it must appear that the objection was made and overruled in the trial court. It is unavailing if made for the first time in the supreme court.

Curtin et al vs. Atkinson. Error from Leffor.

Curtin et al vs Atkinson. Error from Jeffer-son county. Reversed. Opinion by Mr.

An undertaking will be strictly construed in favor of sureties, and their liability will not be extended by construction beyond their specific 2. The term, traffic in intoxicating drinks as used in section 15, chapter I, compiled stat-utes, will in an action on a license bond be held to mean the sale or furnishing of liquors to third persons and not the use thereof by the saloonkeeper.

3. 8. a saloonkeeper, while intoxicated in his own saloon, shot and killed the plaintiff's husband. Held, that the drinking of the liquor by 8 was not a traffic in intoxicating liquor within the meaning of the law or such as will render his sureties liable in an action upon his bond.

4. The second point of the syllabus in this case, 29 Nebraska, 612, overruled.

Howell vs the Alma Milling company et al. Error from Harlan county. Reversed and remanded. Opinion by Mr. Justice Norval. Where a plaintiff transfers his interest in the subject of the action to another during the pendency of the cause the suit may be prose-cuted to final termination in the name of the original plaintiff, or the person to whom the transfer is made may be substituted as plain-tiff.

2. A bank brought an action in a county court on two promissory notes held by it as collateral security and recovered judgment thereon against the maker. The defendant took an appeal to the district court, the usual statutory bond being executed. While the cause was pending in the appeliate court the indebtedness due the bank by the piedgor of the notes was paid, after which one H, to whom said notes prior to the bringing of the suit had also been pledged as collateral security for a debt due him, subject to the claim of the bank, was substituted in place of the bank as plaintiff, who recovered judgment against the maker of the notes. Held, that the surety in the appeal bond or undertaking was not released by the substitution of H as plaintiff.

3. The mere continuance of a cause in an appellate court by stipulation of the parties, without the consent of the surety in the appeal bond, will not operate to discharge such surely.

4. By an agreement between the parties to an appeal pending in the district court a judgment was rendered therein against the party appealing without the knowlegge or consent of the surety on the appeal bond. Held, in the absence of proof of fraud or collusion between the principal and the creditors, that the stipulation for judgment did not release the surety from liability on the appeal bond.

State ex rei Norton v sVan Camp. Mandamus. Writ allowed. Opinion by Mr.

Writ allowed, Opinion by Mr.

Justice Post.

While each house of the legislature is made the judge of the election and qualification of its members, the courts will by mandamus compet the proper canvassing officers to discharge their duties and issue certificates of election to the parties who from the returns appear to have been elected thereto, but the awarding of a certificate in obedience to the mandate of the court will not conclude the legislature in determining the question in proceedings by contest.

2. An interpretation given to a statutory or constitutional provision by the court of last resort becomes a standard to be applied in all cases, and is binding upon all departments of the government, including the legislature.

3. It is contemplated by our constitution and the government, including the legislature.

3. It is contemplated by our constitution and the election laws enacted in pursuance thereof that each qualified elector of the state shall be entitled to vote at some precinct or voting place for the respective state and county officers at every election. Hence a construction will not be adopted which would have the effect to distranchise a considerable number of voters or to deprive a county of representation in the legislature unless such construction is rendered necessary by expressing means. tion in the legislature unless such construction is rendered necessary by express and unequivocal language of the statute or constitution.

4. B. county was organized in 1891 at which time it was unorganized territory, and has never by general apportionment law or special act, been attached to any representative district. It is a narrow strip lying between H. county and the northern boundary of the state, eight townships long from east to westand less than three townships in whith. It adjoins K. county along its entire eastern boundry although further west it extends north to the forty-third parallel about ten miles beyond the northern boundary of K. county. Held, that it is directly west of K. county within the meaning of section 149, chapter xviii, compiled statutes, and was while unorganized territory, attached to said county for election purposes.

5. The legislature never having attached it to any representative district, it remains a part of the 20th district notwithstanding its part of the 20th district notwithstanding its organization as a county.

6. In 1883 an act was approved extending the boundaries of H. county directly north so as to include the unorganized territory which is now B. county, but providing that it should not take effect until a majority of the legal voters of said county should give their assent at the next general election. At the general election in 1883 there were east in said county 1.821 votes, of which 878 only were in favor of said proposition. Held, that the proposition was defeated and an order entered by the county board in 1885 declaring it adopted is a nullity.

county board in 1885 declaring it adopted is a nullity.

7. The boundaries of H, county being clearly defined by law and not including any part of the territory subsequently organized as B, county. Held, there could be no de facto attachment of the latter to the former so as to entitle the voters thereof to participate in elections in H, county.

8. It is settled by a long line of decisions of this court that a canvassing board has no authority to go behind the returns and inquire into the legality of the votes. Their duty is to canvass the votes as certified to them, and a certificate of election issued upon a canvass of a part of the vote of a representative district is without authority of law and void.

9. Neither a canvassing board nor the court . Neither a canvassing board nor the court a mandamus proceeding can inquire into e regularity of the nomination of the candilates or the sufficiency of their certificates of 0. Held on the proofs that the nomination

10. Held on the proofs that the nomination of the relator was regular and sufficient in form and substance.

11. Provisions of the election law which are not esential to a fair election will be held to be formal and directory unless declared to be mandatory by the law itself.

12. The vote of B. county for the relator should not be rejected for the reason that his mane was written on the sample and official ballots by the clerk after they had been printed and were ready for distribution.

13. Votes for representative will not be rejected because the number of the district is not designated upon the official ballot in countless included in one district only.

KICKAPOO INDIAN SAGWA

Why it is The Safest Liver and Stomach Remedy Known.

Indians Have No Knowledge of Mineral Drugs and Poisons -They Cure With Roots and Herbs of the Field and Forest.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is a remedy that many claim will almost raise the remedy upon which the Indian relies at all times and seasons.

Sagwa gives strength, tones the appetite, purifies and enriches the blood. and is the greatest liver, stomach and blood renovator ever known to man. Greater and grander than all this is the fact Rickapoo Indian Woman that Indian known to be at least 108 years Sagwa cannot old-from her photograph. possibly contain __possibly contain anything harmful, no mercury, no strychnine, no bismuth, noarsenie; nothing but the leaves, barks, berries and roots of the field and forest which the Indian has learned to use. Indians know nothing of those harmful drugs, and could not use them if they would. This fact is important.

The medicine you take into your system should be to strengthen and build it up, not merely to stimulate it, and add the fuel of poison to the consuming flames of disease. Indians don't have Dyspepsia, yet they eat anything and everything, at all times and under all conditions. Indians don't have Malaria, yet they sleep out of doors, exposed to night air, live in damp places, and frequent changes are quite common to their mode of life.

Yet both these ailments and many others that the red men never have are frequently found among white people. How is it with the Indian?

Knowing the value of Kickspoo Indian Sagwa he keeps it constantly with him and when his system feels run down, needs toning up as we say, the Indian takes a few doses of Sagwa. He keeps well! He don't wait until danger overtakes him, but craftily watches for its approach and wards off the attack. Here is a lesson to profit by. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, made by the indians from roots, barks and herbs of their own gathering and curing, is obtainable of any druggist, at one dollar per bottle; six bot tles for five dollars. All the Kickapoo Remedies are Sold by Druggists Everywhere.
